

White Varieties

Sauvignon Blanc

Sauvignon Blanc's greatest attributes is its fabulous array of aromatic qualities, which vary according to growing location and its treatment in the cellar. From the Loire Valley the style is reminiscent of cut-grass, gooseberry, flint and nettles. In the New world, particularly New Zealand it produces a stunning array of pungently assertive characters, from the green grass, green bean, tinned pea and asparagus flavours to the more tropical, ripe spectrum of grapefruit, guava, passion fruit and mango.

Chenin Blanc

A classic grape variety from the Loire where it exhibits floral and honeyed aromas, apple and quince flavours and zippy acidity. Think Vouvray. From the New World it can be quite 'pear dropy', becoming more peachy in some of the fuller wines, sometimes a hint of fruit salad. It's the most widely planted South African white varietal, they call it 'Steen'.

Chardonnay

The most popular of all white grape varieties! As the grape of white burgundy it produces a variety of flavours, from minerally unoaked Chablis, to complex, nutty dry whites of Meursault, Chassagne and Puligny. In the New World, and warmer climes of Europe it produces opulently and exotically flavoured whites. Chardonnay varies from the melon, apple and grapefruit cool climate styles to more tropical fruit styles with flavours of peach, mango lime and pineapple. With oak aging, you get a buttery roundness as well as smoky, toasty, and nutty features. Interestingly, where you get Pinot Noir successfully planted you also tend to get Chardonnay!

Prosecco

Prosecco is an Italian white sparkling wine. Prosecco DOC can be Spumante, Frizzante, or Tranquillo, depending on the perlage. It is made from Glera grapes, formerly known also as Prosecco, but other grape varieties may be included.

Red Varieties

Pinot Noir

Pinot Noir is the red grape of Burgundy. It is a very difficult variety to cultivate and is susceptible to numerous viticultural hazards. Perhaps this is why many wine makers consider it the 'holy grail', and want to make it. Remember it is brick red in colour, a good indicator in 'blind tastings'. It produces red fruit aromas of cherries, raspberries and strawberries. It then can produce those 'barn yard' characteristics. Vanilla clove, licorice, mushroom, tobacco, sometimes 'sweaty leather'!

Malbec

Responsible for the so-called 'black wine of Cahors' in South-West France. Malbec is also a minor partner among the five red varieties that make up the Bordeaux blend. In France it can be harsh and rustically tannic. However it is the red grape par excellence in Argentina, where it makes a softer, juicier style of red, with raspberries, mulberry blackberry allied to tar and game-like undertones. We are also seeing Malbec in Chile, Australia and California.

Merlot

For long considered the junior partner in the great Bordeaux duo of grape varieties, it has almost achieved 'cult status' thanks to certain Merlot based Pomerols and St Emilions in Bordeaux, as well as lusciously plummy styles from California and Chile. It is soft textured, producing plummy fruit, and mellow tannins. From the cooler climates you might get grass and bell pepper as it develops then blackcurrant, blackberry, blueberry chocolate and spice characteristics when fully ripe.

Rosé

When rosé wine is the primary product, it is produced with the skin contact method. Black-skinned grapes are crushed and the skins are allowed to remain in contact with the juice for a short period, typically one to three days. The must is then pressed, and the skins are discarded rather than left in contact throughout fermentation (as with red wine making). The longer that the skins are left in contact, the more intense the colour of the final wine.
